Summary of findings

Overall summary

Fernleaf Residential Home is a residential care home providing personal care to 15 people aged 65 and over at the time of the inspection. The service can support up to 19 people.

We found the following examples of good practice.

- The manager had implemented a robust system for all visitors which included a temperature check, hand sanitising and the requirement to wear a face mask upon entering the home. Detailed information was displayed around the home to remind people how to wash their hands effectively.
- Staff were provided with the appropriate personal protective equipment [PPE]. Staff were knowledgeable on when to change PPE and had received enhanced training from healthcare professionals.
- The manager had registered for 'whole home testing' for staff and residents. The manager had a system in place to identify all who had been tested.
- Thorough risk assessments were carried out to assess the impact of COVID-19 on people and staff. Actions were taken to mitigate risks to people when needed.
- The provider was very supportive of the manager and the well-being of the staff team.
- Strict cleaning schedules were in place and appropriate decontamination processes were also in place. This included regular deep cleans of all bedrooms, communal areas and touch points such as light switches and hand rails.
- The provider undertook contingency planning in case there were further outbreaks of COVID-19.
- The manager had an admission process in place which minimised the risk of potential transmission of infection to people living at the home. For example, all people were isolated for two weeks following admission to the home or when discharged from hospital.
- The service had supported people to keep in contact with loved ones including video calls.
- The service had implemented safe visiting for people who were receiving end of life care this included the supply of PPE for visitors and the use of a separate entrance.
